Course Description

The purpose of this seminar is to explore the relationship between global and regional dynamics, with emphasis on East Asia. In particular, the seminar will focus on the role of the state in coping with the new challenges of globalization.

The seminar has three main goals: 1) to develop a basic understanding of different perspectives on globalization; 2) to improve the student's ability to analyze the changing dynamics of the East Asian regional economy in the age of globalization; 3) to deepen your awareness of the forces of globalization that have affected East Asia's political, economic, and social development.

The seminar is divided into four parts. In Part I, we will discuss major debates concerning globalization: How do we define globalization? How do we know it when we see it? Is it new? What are the causes and consequences of globalization? In Part II, we will investigate political and economic development of Japan and the newly industrializing economies (NIEs) (i.e., South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Singapore) in the post-war era. We will also examine Japan's role in developing an integrated East Asian regional economy, especially in the latter half of the 1980s. In Part III, we will study the impact of globalization on the East Asian economies, including Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and China. In this part of the seminar, we will spend a considerable time in discussing such salient issues as the causes and consequences of Asian Financial Crisis, the rise of East Asian regionalism, and the impact of China's increasing economic and political power and its growing integration into the global economy. Part IV will be devoted to student presentations of the research project. The research paper and presentations constitute a major component of the seminar. Each student is required to do extensive research on a topic of your interest related to the main themes of the seminar, write a substantial paper on your research, and present the results of the research in a professional and scholarly manner.

Required Texts

- Samuel S. Kim, ed., East Asia and Globalization (Lanham, ML: Rowman & Littlefield, 2000).
- Mark Beeson, Regionalism and Globalization in East Asia: Politics, Security and Economic Development (New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2007).
- Richard Stubbs, Rethinking Asia's Economic Miracle: The Political Economy of War, Prosperity and Crisis (New York: Palgrave Macmillan, 2005).
- Peter J. Katzenstein, A World of Regions: Asia and Europe in the American Imperium (Ithaca and London: Cornell University Press, 2005).
- Joseph E. Stiglitz, Globalization and Its Discontents (New York: W. W. Norton & Company, 2002).

* All the required books are available for purchase at the area bookstores. They are also on reserve at the university library.

Requirements

- 1. Class Participation and Attendance: Attendance is required for this course. You are permitted two excused absences from class during the semester without penalty to your grade; each additional absence will require a doctor's report, police report, etc. Each student is expected to complete the required readings BEFORE CLASS and participate actively in class discussion. Class participation is measured by the quality of your contributions to the class discussion.
- 2. Discussion Leader: Each student will be required to introduce the reading material and lead the class discussion for two class sessions. The presentation should briefly summarize the central questions and argument of the readings, give your critical reactions to them, and raise questions about the material for discussion. You are expected to synthesize the main themes of the readings and present them in an organized manner. You are also required to prepare a 2-3 page summary of the reading for class distribution. The presentation should be about 10 minutes.
- 3. In-Class Exam: The exam will test your understanding of both readings and class lectures/discussions. Exam questions will include ID questions (i.e., identification of key concepts, events, and people, etc), short answers, and essays. No make-up exams will be given without your doctor's note.

4. Research Project:

- a. Proposal: You may choose a topic of your interest related to the themes of this seminar, but the topic must be approved by the instructor. Each student is required to meet with me by September 19. Once the topic is approved by the instructor, you will be required to submit a formal proposal at the beginning of the class on September 26. The proposal should be 5-6 pages long, not counting your bibliography, and include your research question, the significance of the research, a critical review of the existing literature on the topic, tentative answer(s) to the question, what kind of data you are going to collect, and a preliminary bibliography of at least 10 sources. You will be required to give a 5-minute oral presentation of your research proposal on October 1.
- b. Oral Presentation: You will give a 25-30 minute presentation on your research project, including the main question that your research addresses, the significance of the research, your argument, evidence that supports your argument, and what conclusions can be drawn from your study.
- c. Discussant: Each of you will be required to serve as a discussant during the student presentation. The discussant is expected to make comments on the paper and presentation of one classmate in about 10 minutes. The comments should include a critical evaluation of the paper, questions to the presenter, and constructive suggestions for revision.
- d. First Draft: The draft of the research paper should be at least 15 pages (12-point font and double-spaced). It is due on November 14.
- e. Final Draft: The final draft should be 25-30 pages (12-point font, and double-spaced). There should be a separate front page with the title of the paper, your name, and an e-mail address. You should insert page numbers on every page, except the first. Writing style will be also considered in grading the paper. The final paper is due at 5:00pm on December 11. No late papers will be accepted.

Grades

Final grades will be based on the following criteria:

Participation:	15%
Discussion Leader	10%
Final Exam:	20%
Research Paper:
Proposal	5%
First Draft	10%
Oral Presentation	10%
Discussant	10%
Final Draft	20%

Key Dates

- September 26: Research proposal due at the beginning of the class
- November 14: First draft due at the beginning of the class
- December 11: Final paper due at 5:00pm

Academic Integrity

JMC and MSU policies on academic integrity and plagiarism will be strictly enforced in this course. Plagiarism and other forms of academic misconduct will result in the harshest penalties allowed by the University. See the JMC's student Handbook section, Standard and Expectations, and the MSU's policies on plagiarism available in the following link: <http://www.msu.edu/unit/ombud/plagiarism.html>

Students with Disabilities

If you have a disability that requires special testing accommodations or other classroom modifications, you need to notify both the instructor and the Resource Center for Persons with Disabilities (RCPD) (<http://www.rcpd.msu.edu/Home/>). To notify the Center, call (517)353-9642. The Center is located in 120 Bessey Hall. You may be asked to provide documentation of your disability to determine the appropriateness of accommodations.

Note: This syllabus is subject to minor changes at the instructor's discretion.
